657 jobs getting the axe at CBC

Funding shortfall. Cuts in Vancouver aren't expected to be as bad as in other cities: Canadian Media Guild chief

SAM SMITH
vancouver@metronews.ca

CBC, the nation's public broadcaster, is losing 657 of its staff over the next two years and will no longer be pursuing national sports broadcasting rights.

CBC president and CEO Hubert Lacroix said the move is intended to make up for a $130-million funding shortfall caused in large part by the loss of NHL broadcasting rights to Rogers, as well as a drop in ad revenue.

The exact number of staff in Vancouver being cut was unknown to Marc-Phillipe Laurin, president of the Canadian Media Guild at CBC, but he said it won't be as bad as other markets around the country.

Even so, the overall damage will hit home.

"The impact is starting to be felt, and soon the CBC will start systematically being dismantled by the simple fact the government is ignoring it and ignoring its importance," Laurin said.

This is the third major downsizing for CBC since 2009, Laurin said, adding up to more than 2,000 lost jobs in the past five years.

All in all the cuts make for a less-informed public and a weaker watchdog, he said.

Addressing staff, Lacroix said CBC and Radio-Canada will no longer compete with private broadcasters for professional sports broadcasting rights.

"We will also cover fewer events and fewer sports," he said. "In addition, our involvement in amateur sports will be reduced. We will only broadcast events that allow us to break even."

The company will, however, commit to signature events such as the Olympics, but it will "approach these events in new ways."

Planned expansion into London, Ont., was also cancelled.

Ian Morrison, spokesperson with the Friends of Canadian Broadcasting, said it's all part of the federal government's plan to bleed out the CBC.

"(Prime Minister Stephen) Harper knows public broadcasting is popular in this country, so instead of coming along and cutting the CBC's aorta, it kind of gets an attack by a thousand cuts," he said.

According to his calculations, it costs nine cents per Canadian per day to subsidize CBC. It's an investment well worth making, in his opinion.

"If you go to Starbucks and take a good sip of your coffee, that sip costs you more than subsidizing CBC," he said.

Premier to ask conflict czar about directorship

Close ties to Liberals, federal Tories. Clark says she did no work for short-lived subsidiary Premier Christy Clark says she will ask conflict-of-interest commissioner Paul Fraser for an opinion about the role she once held as a director of a company with strong ties to B.C.'s Liberals and the federal Conservatives.

But the current CEO of the parent company says the issue has been blown completely out of proportion.

"That company didn't even have a bank account set up," said John Park of RCI Capital Group on Thursday. "It didn't even make it out of our research department."

Clark was listed as a director of RCI Pacific Gateway Education Inc., a subsidiary of investment firm RCI Capital Group, which focuses on energy resources and Asia-Pacific markets.

Opposition Leader Adrian Dix questioned Clark in the legislature about her role and relationship with the company, especially since RCI Capital Group officials have travelled to Asia on trade missions with Clark and the federal government.

"They can assert things in this fantasy world: 'I wasn't a director of the company,' even though I was. 'They weren't using me to promote their company,' even though they were. 'I wasn't the founding director, chair of the company,' even though she was," said Dix.

Clark said she held a brief honorary directorship in 2007, but that ended when it folded and she took a job as a Vancouver radio broadcaster.

"I never did any work for them," Clark said at a news conference. "Never went to any meetings. Never got paid."

She said the NDP was looking to create an issue from one that didn't exist.

Park said the company examined bringing international university students to Canada in 2007 but decided a few months later the venture was not viable.

RCI Pacific Gateway Education Inc. lasted three months at the most, said Park.

New charges. Bail denied for convicted pedophile

A B.C. man who served five years in a Thai prison for sexually assaulting boys must remain in a Canadian jail while he waits for trial on new charges of abusing children overseas.

A provincial court judge refused bail for Christopher Neil, 39, on Thursday. Neil faces 10 charges, half of which are related to accusations based in Southeast Asia.

RCMP have said they collected evidence abroad that the former English teacher committed sex crimes against children in Cambodia a decade ago. Neil is also accused of accessing and possessing child pornography while living in Metro Vancouver last year.

Neil's lawyer, Mark Thompson, said his client will plead not guilty, adding, "Mr. Neil does have an explanation, one he's looking forward to present."

The man spent many years in Asia prior to garnering global notoriety when he became the then-subject of Interpol's largest international manhunt in 2007. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Teacher punished after shoving

A shop teacher at South Kamloops Secondary who pleaded guilty to assault after shoving a student has been suspended for a second time. It began on Nov. 1, 2012, when Andrew Coates was trying to pull into the school parking lot and a group of boys deliberately blocked his car. Coates later confronted and shoved one student in the classroom. He then apologized and asked if the student was OK. THE CANADIAN PRESS

A fair and fowl election. This vote is for the birds

Feathers will fly as Vancouverites prepare for the second-most important vote of the year.

The city and its park board are officially launching the first annual City Bird Competition next week to pick its "official" fowl for Bird Week 2015.

But the campaigning is already underway as the six candidates have each started their own Twitter accounts run by the park board's social-media team.

And just like a real election, the race isn't without scandal.

"Apologies to Capt. George Vancouver #hadanaccident #stillvoteforme," tweeted the Varied Thrush, posting a photo of city hall's George Vancouver statue covered in bird poop.

"We have the highest count of migratory birds in the world, it's amazing," said park board commissioner Constance Barnes. "They're birds that we see everyday, you just don't stop to appreciate them. So we're looking at ways to engage the public, both kids and old birders like myself."

VCC continuing language services

New funding. VCC, CIC sign two-year, $9.4-million agreement to deliver settlement language training

Newcomers to Canada can continue to access free English training at Vancouver Community College now that funding has been secured.

VCC and Citizenship and Immigration Canada (CIC) announced the signing of a two-year, $9.4-million agreement that will see the school continue to deliver settlement language training through Language Instruction for Newcomers to Canada (LINC).

The college and other providers of the B.C.-run English Language Services for Adults (ELSA) program found out two years ago that ELSA would be scrapped as funding became a federal responsibility.

That meant people like Richard Sim, the ELSA department head for VCC, has to reapply for funding and wait to see how the changeover would impact students.

"When government makes an announcement like that, there is a fear of the unknown and some moments of anxiety," Sim told Metro.

It wasn't until last fall that VCC learned CIC would fund its language training for newcomers in some capacity.

The extent of the funding wasn't known until a final agreement was finally hashed out and announced Thursday.

The $9.4-million deal will allows the school to provide LINC courses to newcomers free of charge from 2014 to 2016.

ELSA was phased out March 31 and the first LINC classes started April 1, so the transition has been seamless for the 800 students a day that access the program on any given day. "It is very much business as usual for our students," said Sim.

The classes, 43 per term, are offered at the school's Broadway campus.

MLA questioned over temporary foreign worker company

The BC Federation of Labour is taking former MLA Harry Bloy to task over his temporary foreign worker company called Global Business Canada.

Bloy, who was recently listed as CEO of Global Business Canada on their website before it was taken down this week, wrote B.C. will have a shortage of one million workers in the next 12 years.

"Workers from Asia have an excellent reputation of being experienced, dedicated and punctual," Bloy states on his website.

Bloy also listed his past experience travelling to China, South Korea and India representing the province and introducing businesses in those countries to ones from British Columbia. "Business today has no border," he wrote.

But BC Federation of Labour president Jim Sinclair questioned Bloy's intentions as he said there are capable Canadians looking for those jobs.

"I would like to ask Mr. Bloy why he is working to bring foreign workers into Canada when there are unemployed Canadian residents who are qualified and looking for work," Sinclair said. "The Government of Canada's own reports demonstrate that many of those jobs being filled with temporary foreign workers are not temporary, nor is there an actual labour shortage."

Metro attempted to reach out to Harry Bloy for comment but he did not return any calls before press deadline.

Rapper Kyprios peers into Midnight Sun

New CD. Album is indicative of the life of artists, who are 'bi-polar by nature'

vancouver@metronews.ca

In life there are ups and downs, good moments, terrible ones, hate, love and everything in between.

This is personified in Midnight Sun, the next personal and introspective CD from Vancouver's own Kyprios.

"One time we were in Whitehorse a couple of years ago with Sweatshop Union, and we were quite far north and it was about 4:35 in the morning, and it was still dusk," Kyprios told Metro.

"It was such a strange thing to see, the midnight sun. That dichotomy. And for a while there the songs I was making were either really positive and uplifting, or a bit more pessimistic and downtrodden."

To him it's indicative of the life of an artist. One day things are great and you're turning down work, and the next you're scrounging through the couch for a loose dollar.

"I think artists are bi-polar by nature," he said. "Sometimes you're sitting and waiting for the phone to ring, and sometimes you're out doing your own thing."

It's this world Kyprios has tried to capture on the mike and present with Midnight Sun, which he hopes has the legs to survive the times.

"It's hard to make something that lasts through the news cycle," he said.

"This time I hope people can cling on to these songs that might mean more to the fabric of their personality, rather than just have them give a single listen."

Midnight Sun is officially released on Saturday, and Kyprios will be having his album release party at the Fan Club in Vancouver.

Victoria bus drivers decry stop-announcement plan

A B.C. Transit bus CONTRIBUTED

The union representing transit workers in Victoria says a plan to make bus drivers call out stops is akin to "distracted driving" and puts the public at risk.

Starting April 22, drivers on BC Transit buses will be required to announce upcoming stops through a public address system. The microphones will be hands-free on double-decker and handyDART buses — which make up about 10 per cent of the fleet — but not on regular, single-deck buses.

Unifor Local 333 president Ben Williams called the microphones "antiquated" and said drivers shouldn't be forced to use them while also "navigating heavy traffic."

"This is dangerous, this is distracted driving and it puts the lives of our drivers, their passengers and the public at great risk," Williams said in a statement.

The news follows a recent announcement that more people in B.C. were killed in 2012 by distracted drivers than drunk ones.

The union has asked the B.C. superintendent of motor vehicles, as well as provincial Justice Minister Suzanne Anton, to overrule BC Transit's policy.

"We will follow up with every public-safety agency to stop this and we will direct our members to obey their responsibilities as professional drivers by pulling off the road to make announcements if these orders are imposed," Williams said.

BC Transit instituted the policy in response to a human rights complaint by a visually-impaired passenger. Williams said the solution should involve an automated GPS system rather than "ordering bus drivers to break distracted driving laws."

'Antiquated' microphones

"This is distracted driving and it puts the lives of our drivers, their passengers and the public at great risk."
Unifor Local 333 president Ben Williams

BC Transit's safety director, John Palmer, told Metro the new policy conforms to provincial driving laws.

"In the investigations we've done, we understand it meets the legislation requirement," he said. "It's defined as a hand-held microphone and allowed under the legislation."

Palmer said drivers regularly perform similar tasks, such as using a radio handset for internal communication.

‘Today is a very sad day’

Jim Flaherty. Death of former finance minister stuns Parliament Hill

Jim Flaherty died suddenly Thursday at age 64, less than a month after retiring from his post as Canada’s finance minister.

Flaherty, who spent eight years in the role, had been ill for some time, though that was not cited as a reason for his resignation.

The news rocked the House of Commons, as politicians mourned the loss of a finance minister who trudged through a financial crisis and recession and balanced the once rocky Canadian budget.

“Today is a very sad day — for me, for our government and for all of our country. I learned a short time ago that our colleague, my partner and my friend Jim Flaherty has passed away suddenly today,” Prime Minister Stephen Harper told MPs in a Parliament Hill committee room with his wife Laureen in tears by his side.

v“This comes as an unexpected and terrible shock to Jim’s family, to our caucus and to Laureen and me.”

Quoted

“I could always rely on Jim to be a devout friend through tough times, and an encouraging figure through good.”

Foreign Affairs Minister John Baird, in a statement expressing his condolences.

Question period was suspended Thursday after the news broke. The usually raucous chamber was in a lull, with politicians hugging, crying and mourning together.

“It was very, very sombre, sad, but shocking, obviously,” said NDP MP Paul Dewar, adding that, unlike other finance ministers, Flaherty brought a certain levity to the usually stressful environment. “He had that twinkle in his eye and he had a great sense of humour that brought something to the House of Commons and the politics, which is all too often not there.”

Foreign Affairs Minister John Baird expressed his condolences in a written statement Thursday, calling Flaherty a “good friend and colleague for over two decades.”

v“Jim was a mentor to me throughout my time at Queen’s Park from a very young age,” wrote Baird. “I could always rely on Jim to be a devout friend through tough times, and an encouraging figure through good.”

Former Parliamentary Budget Officer Kevin Page spent extensive time on the job with Flaherty and although the two butted heads on several issues, Page acknowledged how good a finance minister Flaherty was.

“It’s a loss for the country for sure,” said Page. “It’s just an exhausting job, but he certainly rose to the occasion.”

Brazeau arrested on charges of assault, cocaine possession

Suspended senator Patrick Brazeau pleaded not guilty on Thursday to several charges, including assault and cocaine possession.

Police arrested the 39-year-old in Gatineau, near Ottawa, at around 4 a.m. Thursday following a domestic assault call. Police say they arrived to find Brazeau and a woman in a “physical altercation.” A 50-year-old man was also at the house.

Brazeau was charged with two counts of assault, uttering death threats, cocaine possession and breach of conditions. He briefly appeared in court wearing handcuffs. He did not look at reporters.

He also has one charge of assault and one charge of sexual assault outstanding from 2013.

Brazeau was to be held in custody overnight and was due to reappear in court Friday morning for a bail hearing.

Crown prosecutor Sylvain Petitclerc said he asked to keep Brazeau in custody to assure the safety of others and because he breached bail conditions.

“We cannot just let him go free as a bird like that,” he said, adding that depending on the bail hearing, Brazeau could be kept in custody again or be released with certain conditions.

A huge pile of what appeared to be Brazeau’s belongings were strewn all over the back door of his girlfriend’s house, including photographs, his Certificate of Indian Status card, clothing and CDs.

Immigrants: Canada's 150th birthday and beyond

The Story of Us
Immigration in Canada

Newcomers. Ready to shape the future, even if number of people arriving slows

SCOTT TAYLOR
Metro in London, Ont.

What will Canada look like in 2017 as it becomes 150 years old? What will it look like beyond that?

The tide of immigration will continue, but some think the flow will become more of a trickle as the years pass.

"I think it's a fair assumption to think that there will be a lower level of immigration than the current level," said Western University sociology professor Roderic Beaujot.

Politicians may say Canada needs immigration "especially at election time," Beaujot said. But, the problem is, demographers and economists aren't necessarily preaching the same message, he said.

Beaujot also sees the need to stem population explosions around the world as having an adverse effect on immigration.

"The world can't sustain this continuous growth that we have," he said. "The population has to live within the ecology. For that alone, it may slow down."

Such thoughts are worlds away for two young women, who recently became Canadian citizens.

Paula Garcia's family came to Canada from Colombia seven years ago. Soon, the 23-year-old university student will be able to give back to the country that took her in, all while fulfilling a dream of her own.

She plans to be an elementary school teacher, in part, because she wants to offer children the best possible future.

"I love kids, so that's what I thought would be the best thing for me," she said. "I have the possibility to do this here now."

The citizenship ceremony, Garcia said, was wonderful, and while the test she had to pass to get there was difficult, it was fair. She earned an A.

She was one of 62 people who became citizens at a March 26 ceremony in London, Ont.

Maria Qureshi, 32, originally from Pakistan, was there too.

She held a small Canadian flag in her hand and had a smile on her face, after taking the oath. "It's like nervous excitement," she said. "I had tears in my eyes when they first announced that we're citizens, and I loved the judge's speech. It was amazing."

Citizenship Judge Normand Vachon quoted inspirational leaders such as Nelson Mandela, Mother Teresa and Mahatma Gandhi in his welcoming speech to the new Canadians.

Qureshi said the long wait for that day was difficult, but boasted that she too aced the citizenship test. "I studied extra hard for it, and I took it really seriously," she said proudly. "So I scored full marks on it."

In Canada, she said she hopes for a better future because she has a better chance of being successful.

That was the common thread among many at the ceremony.

They just want a fair chance to forge a good life for themselves, their children and, of course, to be key players in the Canada of tomorrow. That's what Vachon urged them to do.

He told them to find a job, keep a job, make sure their children are clothed, fed, warm and in school. He suggested they get to know their neighbours and become active, along with knowledgeable, in politics.

Perhaps most importantly, he told them to make this country better than it was when they found it.

See that symbol? It means you can scan this image with your Metro News app to see a video clip featuring more immigrants who've made Canada home.

Research

A Statistics Canada paper says one of three situations, all depending on a number of factors and formulas, will play out for immigration through 2036.

- Low projection: Six immigrants per thousand population each year; would be the lowest rate recorded since early 1990s.
- Medium projection: 7.5 immigrants per thousand population each year; matches the average annual immigration rate for early 1990s to late 2000s.
- High projection: Nine immigrants per thousand population each year; matches highest rate recorded since 1991.

Looking into the future

Here's what some of the people Metro talked to over the past five days said about where they've come from and what they hope to see in coming years.

Jamie Martinez (from Colombia): "The first thing that we need to do is to have equity here. It means if the population of Colombians is two per cent (in Canada), every company needs to have two per cent Colombians working there."

Jaime Martinez

Shirley Edwards (from United Kingdom): "It takes a number of years to settle and integrate into a new country. Be patient, though. Know that when you need support (you can) ask for it (and) it will come. That's what community is for. That's the Canada we now call home."

Shirley Edwards

Priscilla Bunke (From Nigeria): "My hope for the future is to be able to follow my career and help my children achieve their potential in our chosen country."

Canadian opinion

Young people more open to immigrants: Prof

Freedom, peace, the opportunity to build a better life.

It's simple to see why people from other countries care about immigration and are passionate about its future.

But what about the average Canadian? Is immigration — the influx of people with different ways of doing things — a positive or a negative thing?

Much of it depends on who you're asking, one expert said.

"Judging by the students I meet every year in Ottawa, who come from several parts of the country, the young generation has a more progressive and more open-minded notion (of immigration)," said University of Ottawa Canadian history professor Pierre Anctil.

More rural areas tend to be less accepting, Anctil said. Though there are exceptions to that rule, he added.

Mini Winnie, miny mo ... Guess what? This puppy is a clone

This undated photo issued by Channel 4 on Wednesday shows Britain's first cloned dog, a dachshund called Mini Winnie. The dog was cloned from a 12-year-old pet called Winnie, owned by Rebecca Smith from London, which beat another 60,000 pets in a competition organized by a South Korean tech firm. The dachshund puppy was born in Seoul at the end of March 2014. CHANNEL 4/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Plan B: Why not engineer the climate?

Divisive proposal. Supporters say it's inevitable, opponents say it's mad science; UN panel entertains the option

It's Plan B in the fight against climate change: cooling the planet by sucking heat-trapping CO2 from the air or reflecting sunlight back into space.

Called geoengineering, it's considered mad science by opponents. Supporters say it would be foolish to ignore it, since Plan A — slashing carbon emissions from fossil fuels — is moving so slowly.

The UN's expert panel on climate change is under pressure from both sides this week as it considers whether geoengineering should be part of the toolkit that governments use to keep global warming in check.

Russia, in particular, has been pushing the panel to place more emphasis on such techniques in a key document for policymakers being finalized in Berlin this week.

Drafts leaked before the conference only mentioned one of the options, removing CO2 from the air and storing it underground. Russia, a major oil and gas producer, said the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change should also mention solar radiation management, which could include everything from covering open surfaces with reflective materials or placing sun-mirrors in orbit around the Earth.

But even advocates of studying geoengineering express doubts.

"Really at the present moment there is a high level of uncertainty surrounding all of these options," said Steve Rayner, co-director of Oxford University's geoengineering program.

Some environmental activists watching the talks in Berlin want the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change to scratch references to geoengineering altogether.

Lunacy. Space-race stuff fetches tens of thousands

An Apollo 11 lunar surface checklist sheet was among the coveted items sold at a New York City auction of space exploration artifacts.

The checklist contained annotations by astronaut Buzz Aldrin while he was on the moon. It sold at Bonhams this week for more than $68,000. It had a pre-sale estimate of up to $45,000. Other highlights included a six-inch cloth emblem depicting an eagle landing on the moon. A U.S. flag carried by Aldrin on Apollo 11 fetched $47,500, double its pre-sale estimate. Police say bug can take over computer camera

Police in Mexico City have issued a warning about a new type of "ransomware" virus that can take over computers' cameras and pretend the user is under surveillance.

The Mexico City police department's cyber-crime unit says the virus infects computers, generally after they view or download sexually explicit material.

Morgentaler Clinic to close this summer

New Brunswick.
Controversial abortion clinic set to close, citing a lack of funds

The contentious issue of abortion in New Brunswick arose Thursday after the Morgentaler Clinic in Fredericton said it will close at the end of July, a decision the facility's manager said was the result of the province's refusal to fund the procedure at clinics.

Simone Leibovitch said the clinic, which has been in operation for 20 years, has been providing abortions even though it has lost about $100,000 over the last decade.

"Dr. Morgentaler's policy was always such that no woman would ever be turned away from having an abortion, and we followed that policy," Leibovitch told a news conference.

"The reality is we can't continue to stay open and provide abortions that are not publicly funded. It's impossible."

Abortion isn't covered by medicare in the province unless two doctors certify in writing that it is medically necessary. In addition, it must be performed by a specialist in an approved hospital.

"As far as I'm concerned, the solution to this problem is up to the government of New Brunswick," Leibovitch said. "They need to repeal Regulation 84-20. It is a barrier to health care. It's always been a barrier to health care."

The regulation was introduced in 1984 and has been a source of controversy. In 2002, Dr. Henry Morgentaler launched a lawsuit in a bid to force the provincial government to pay for the procedure at clinics. The case has been in limbo since Morgentaler died last May.

New Brunswick Health Minister Hugh Flemming refused to comment on the matter, citing the court proceedings.

In the legislature, Liberal Opposition Leader Brian Gallant said he is pro-choice and called on the government to study the issue of access to abortion.

Jula Hughes, a law professor at the University of New Brunswick and a supporter of the Morgentaler Clinic, said she fears women will look for less reputable places to terminate a pregnancy once the facility shuts down. "That would just be horrific beyond contemplation," she said. THE CANADIAN PRESS

A victory for protesters

Students in Taiwan protesting against a trade pact with China cheer after receiving assurances that the pact, which they see as endangering the island's autonomy, would be reviewed. Nigeria

Child bride kills groom and friends

A child bride forced into marriage in Nigeria killed a groom and three of his friends with a poisoned meal, police said Thursday.

Fourteen-year-old Wasila Umaru was married last week to 35-year-old Umaru Sani, according to assistant superintendent Musa Magaji Majia.

Over the weekend, the groom invited a dozen friends to celebrate at his village. Umaru told police she bought rat poison at a village market and used it to prepare a dish of rice.

"The suspect confessed to committing the crime and said she did it because she was forced to marry a man she did not love," Majia said.

The groom and a friend died the same day. Two other victims died later in the hospital. Umaru is co-operating with police and likely will be charged with culpable homicide, Majia said.

According to the UN children's agency, 50 per cent of Nigerian girls in rural areas are married before they turn 18. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Millard now charged in his father's death

First-degree murder charges. Toronto man already accused in Tim Bosma case

A Toronto man accused of killing a Hamilton father who disappeared after taking a pair of prospective buyers for a test drive has now been charged with murder in the death of his own father and another woman.

Dellen Millard has been charged with first-degree murder in the deaths of Wayne Millard and Laura Babcock, with whom Dellen was romantically linked, Ontario provincial police said Thursday.

Mark Smich is also charged with first-degree murder in Babcock's death.

Dellen Millard
CONTRIBUTED

Officers have "attended and spoken with the Babcock family," Toronto police Staff Insp. Greg McLane said in a news conference.

"We'd ask that the victims' families be afforded privacy during these very, very difficult times."

Millard's lawyer, Deepak Paradkar, would not comment on the new charges but said he would "defend the case zealously."

He had previously dismissed any connection between the three cases as speculation.

Millard, 28, and Smich, 26, are charged with first-degree murder in the death of Tim Bosma, who vanished May 6, 2013 after leaving home in his pick-up with two men. He had posted the truck for sale online.

His remains were found about a week later burned beyond recognition at a southwestern Ontario farm belonging to Millard.

Civilian food crisis at its worst: UN

The United Nations says the food crisis facing displaced Syrian civilians has now reached the worst-case scenario, with no end in sight.

That is forcing the UN World Food Program to cut food distribution by 16 per cent this month to millions of internally displaced people and refugees after a 20 per cent cut in March, said Muhannad Hadi, the agency's emergency coordinator for Syria.

The WFP predicts its desperate client list — from inside Syria and neighbouring countries — to grow from 5.8 million to seven million by year end, said Hadi. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Breath of French air fetches $860

Beijing artist Liang Kegang returned from a business trip in southern France with a small item of protest against his home city's choking pollution: a glass jar of clean, Provence air.

He put it up for auction before a group of about 100 Chinese artists and collectors late last month, and it fetched 5,250 yuan ($860).

Road trip to touch 90 cities

We Create Change Tour. Free the Children ambassador Spencer West leading group visiting schools across Canada over 10 weeks

Sure, we've all been on a road trip, but imagine one that sets out to visit 90 cities in 10 weeks — oh, and did we mention it's all to celebrate Canadian students helping other youth around the world to access education?

Starting Friday, Free the Children ambassador Spencer West, along with friends from the band Neverest, 11-year-old activist Hannah Alper and cast members from Degrassi, are visiting schools across the country as part of the We Create Change Tour.

This unique trip is billed as a "mini We Day" — Free the Children's annual event inspiring youth to get involved and make a difference in their community and the world.

"Fifty-seven million children are still denied access to education," said West, who lost both his legs at the age of five. "I've had the chance to speak with young people around the world who dream of changing their lives and the lives of their families through education."

As a sponsor, Metro will follow the tour as it makes its way across the country, with West sharing with readers how students across Canada have inspired him with their efforts to help those who haven't had an opportunity to go to school

Visit metronews.ca to follow our interactive map chronicling West's journey.

Oh, my boss can see my Facebook posts about work! CHRIS JACKSON/GETTY IMAGES

Do you want to post that?

Facebook. Drank half a bottle of wine and about to post something on the social media site? A cute cartoon dino may remind you who will see it

Facebook admits it's had its fair share of fumbles and stumbles when it comes to privacy.

So the social media giant, which has 19 million regular users in Canada and 1.23 billion globally, is rolling out a few tweaks to help users better understand how to control who sees their posts.

And it's taking the unusual step of intervening when it suspects users could be posting publicly without realizing it.

"We understand that in the past some people have felt that privacy on Facebook has changed too frequently or that we haven't communicated as well as we could about privacy," says Mike Nowak, a product manager on the company's privacy team.

"We just want to make sure that this is a thing they want to be doing and if not, then give them an opportunity to proactively change their audience," says Nowak, noting Facebook is wary of the dino being compared to Microsoft's much-maligned Clippy. The animated paper clip was designed to pop-up in Office and offer users help, but was seen as more of an annoyance.

"This is a little bit of a different tactic from what we've used in the past ... so interrupting people is something we don't take lightly. But in this case we felt that it's important enough for people to be sharing with people they want to be sharing with — for people to be in the right privacy state for them — that we felt it was worth it to have this kind of more interrupted experience once in a while."

Privacy dino to the rescue

For users who regularly share content widely without any privacy restrictions, Facebook plans to periodically prompt them (with what it hopes is a disarmingly cute cartoon dinosaur) to ensure they realize their posts are viewable by anyone and everyone.

English vs. French

It's non in Quebec to 'Le Magasin Walmart' change

A judge has ruled that major retailers do not have to modify their commercial trademark English names into French, as the province's language watchdog had hoped.

The watchdog had suggested that a store like Walmart, a household name in Quebec with no French equivalent, could change its signage to "Le Magasin Walmart."

Californian city spices up hot spat with Sriracha

Getting very heated.
Irwindale council pecks at 'rooster' sauce maker, declares local factory a public nuisance

A Southern California city has declared the factory that produces the popular Sriracha hot sauce a public nuisance.

The Irwindale City Council's action Wednesday night gives the factory 90 days to make changes to stop the spicy odours that prompted complaints from some residents last fall. Declaring a public nuisance will allow city officials to enter the factory and make changes if the odours persist after the deadline.

The decision came despite testimony by air-quality experts that progress was being made toward a resolution.

Campaign aims to warm customers up to frozen food

Frozen foods are about to get some badly needed image therapy.

With sales slipping in the category, frozen food makers are in the final stages of preparing a major public relations campaign to defend the nutritional reputation of their products. The push will include what are said to be the first national TV ads on behalf of the industry as a whole, as well as social media and in-store promotions.

Kraig Naasz, president of the American Frozen Food Institute, confirmed that the industry trade group plans to launch the "multi-year, multi-million dollar" campaign in early May.

35-hour workweek

French IT workers win right to unplug after workday

French IT staff at Google, Facebook and other companies have won new protections against burnout: the right to unplug.

A new agreement with employers gives more than 300,000 tech-sector workers added guarantees that the "always connected" lifestyle enabled by smartphones won't infringe on their rights under France's famous 35-hour workweek.

Union official Michel de la Force told The Associated Press that the deal doesn't mean staff will be forced to turn off their phones at 6 p.m., as some media have reported. "They haven't read the agreement," De la Force said. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MILEY DROPS BALL ON FEMALE POWER

THE METRO LIST

Mike Benhaim
metronews.ca

1 Solidarity. You know that one relative we all enable? The "victim" that alienates everyone, wants no part of the family, but still feels entitled to financial support as if restitution for their "emotional scars"? We pity them but eventually just stop taking their calls. It's sad. In unrelated news, the Parti Québécois was convincingly defeated in Quebec's provincial election.

2 Wrecking Ball. Some think that Miley Cyrus is just a wild child, but she's really a freedom-fighter advocating sexual equality. Cyrus says, "Guy rappers grab their crotch all f---ing day and have hos around them... but if I grab my crotch and have hot model b---hes around me, I'm degrading women? ... But I'm part of the evolution of that. I hope." So there it is: Miley Cyrus is the evolution of female empowerment. As well, probably a growing trend of parents home-schooling their daughters.

3 #MarchMadness. The NCAA men's basketball finals saw the UConn Huskies defeat the Kentucky Wildcats. It marked the first time a 7th and 8th seed met in the finals, but was no less satisfying. We saw high energy, great dunks, some violent unsportsmanlike conduct and terrific in-depth analysis. And that was just from the other guys at the bar.

4 #DayofPink. This year's "international day against bullying, discrimination, homophobia and transphobia in schools and communities" took place this week with tremendous support. The best hope to deter a bully is to educate them and others about how to deal with them. We can draw from our own experiences as almost all of us can relate to being bullied: Some by the big kid at school, others by their boss, and some by Revenue Canada. (That last one was a cry for help. They're killing me!)

5 UConn't beat 'em. The day after their boys won it all, UConn's undefeated women's team scored a convincing victory over Notre Dame's also undefeated Fighting Irish to bring home the championship. Both teams set new standards for their schools, and for women everywhere. But I can't help think that somewhere at the heart of all this, stands Miley Cyrus. (What? Too much?) #Uconn

6 Holy week. Two upcoming religious holidays include Passover for the Jews, and Easter for Christians. Both share a historical bond celebrated with wine and feasts and family members gathering to remind each other of things long forgotten. Like the time they went to a party and woke up at the zoo, lost the family savings in a Ponzi scheme, or declared grandpa mentally incompetent to gain control of his estate. All the while, sharing blessings of peace. Happy holidays!

7 In memoriam. The passing of Hollywood icon Mickey Rooney revived reports of elder abuse that left him almost destitute. @peoplemag tweeted: "Mickey Rooney's funeral delayed by family fighting" which prompted George Lopez to tweet "I didn't know Mickey Rooney was Mexican?" That aside, his physical stature never diminished his artistic largesse, and that body of work, not his financial estate, is his true legacy. #RIP

On cloud divine

COURTESY BERNDNAUT SMILDE/RONCHINI GALLERY

Indoor cloud art is mist-ifying

A Dutch artist is taking the creative industry by storm ... with his indoor clouds. Berndnaut Smilde, 35, from Amsterdam, Netherlands, uses a smoke machine and clever lighting to create nimbuses of various shapes in empty spaces. An exhibition of his artworks, Antipode, is now on at London, U.K.'s Ronchini Gallery until June 14.

METRO

Artist's viewpoint

"It always takes awhile to get a cloud where I want it. Their ephemerality is what I like the most. They just appear for a few seconds and then it falls apart."

Berndnaut Smilde, based in Amsterdam

Mystery points to the ominous

Ultimately, "there is a definite ominous element of my work," the artist says, pointing to the clouds' mystifying quality. "There is something ungraspable about clouds, which I think is really interesting," Smilde says.

"For this reason, people have been creating myths and meanings around clouds for centuries," he concluded.

Babies let their taste buds do the talking

ANDREW FIFIELD
metronews.ca

YOUTUBE.COM

If we were to rank food flavours that are largely hostile to our taste buds, lemons would have to rank near the top with sour keys and horseradish. But that's an admittedly sophisticated opinion, hardened by years spent emptying bowls, cups and plates. Combining flavours and whatnot.

To get to the kernel of a lemon's appeal, we need to return to ground zero for citrusy flavour country and put them in the hands of babies. The results are obviously adorable, but there's something suspicious about the ones that appear to like it. Or perhaps they're just old souls.

Denis Leary, Frank Langella and Kevin Costner star in Draft Day, which opens today.

Synopsis

On the day of the NFL Draft, Cleveland Browns general manager Sonny Weaver Jr. (Kevin Costner) is faced with some tough choices. His team is not doing well, sports radio talking heads are beating him up for ruining the franchise his late father — the legendary coach Sonny Weaver Sr. — built up and his girlfriend (Jennifer Garner) is angry with him. His future and possibly the future of the team hinges on one deal: a massive trade for hotshot quarterback Bo Callahan (Josh Pence).

- Richard: ●●●○○
- Mark: ●●●●○

Feelings in football. Kevin Costner brings heart to this film about a down-on-his-luck NFL general manager hinging his future on one big trade

Richard: Mark, the message behind Draft Day is that technical ability is one thing, but heart is more important. It's a key message for the story. This movie works well because it has heart like the players Costner's character tries to recruit.

Mark: Which makes the movie the opposite of Moneyball, which celebrates rationality and scientific method. But there were other reasons I liked the movie. Having it take place on one day gives the film an urgency. And there were some nice directorial flourishes, too. I haven't seen split screen used so well. And let's not forget a strong supporting cast.

RC: Like Moneyball, Draft Day scores authenticity points by casting a number of sports figures and insiders playing themselves, but you're right, the supporting cast scores a touchdown. I enjoyed Frank Langella playing the anything-for-a-buck owner of the Browns. Of course, this really is Costner's movie. He's always easy to watch, but particularly so when he's in sports movies.

MB: And it's hard to watch Costner without thinking about his iconic sports role in Field of Dreams. This is often where players wind up — as coaches and managers. So there's a through line to the character to appreciate. But I am not a football fan. So all the negotiations were like watching a game of chess without any idea how the pieces are moved. Could you follow the technical details of the trades? Or were you wishing for subtitles?

RC: Subtitles might have helped, but it didn't matter if I followed the intricacies because I think the emotion that comes with changing someone's life by drafting them into the NFL — I found those scenes powerful.

MB: Ivan Reitman sometimes lapses into sentiment and bathos, but he keeps these tendencies in check. I was also impressed at the sure handed direction. Reitman's working at the top of his game.

Rolling Stone flubs U.S. Constitution 'tattoo' on Louis-Dreyfus's back

Julia Louis-Dreyfus better hope her latest tattoo is a temporary one.

The cover image of next month's Rolling Stone magazine featuring the Veep star depicts a nude Louis-Dreyfus with a tattoo of the U.S. Constitution signed by John Hancock across her back. The problem is Hancock signed the Declaration of Independence, not the Constitution.

Louis-Dreyfus jokingly blamed the blunder on Mike McClintock, the fictional Veep character played by Matt Walsh who serves as communications director to Louis-Dreyfus' Vice-President Selina Meyer on the HBO comedy series.

"Yet another Mike (expletive)-up," the 53-year-old actress posted Wednesday on Twitter. "Dummy."

The National Constitution Center in Philadelphia mocked the flub by tweeting a photo of the cover alongside such founding fathers as George Washington and Benjamin Franklin in Signers' Hall with the words, "Thanks for the shoutout but no Hancock here."

The new issue of Rolling Stone, out April 24. MARK SELIGER/ROLLING STONE

Rolling Stone spokeswoman Melissa Bruno said the Declaration of Independence is on the other side of Louis-Dreyfus' body, but they couldn't fit in the signatures.

Naya Rivera, Big Sean put the 'ex' in Rolex

MELINDA TAUB
Metro World News

Naya Rivera and Big Sean have called off their engagement. But their breakup is no placid, cordial conscious uncoupling. It's more of a tweet-accusations-of-theft kind of uncoupling.

Rapper Big Sean's rep said that it was his decision to call off the engagement, denying rumours that he'd cheated. Sources told TMZ that he called things off because Rivera, who stars on Glee as Santana, was too controlling and jealous.

Rivera herself felt no need to get her side of the story out through anonymous sources: She went straight to the Internet. In a now-deleted tweet, she wrote, "@bigsean stealing rolexes from a lady's house now. Maybe cuz I'm on Glee and making more money or something. #triflin."

Burn! But the story doesn't end there. Sources told TMZ that the watch was actually Sean's and he just lent it to Rivera. We look forward to more deleted tweets in response.

Regardless, neither is likely to languish in singlehood for long: Rivera seems to have gone up a cup size or two of late. And hey, Big Sean has a Rolex now.

Lena Dunham GETTY IMAGES

Dunham was crushed to realize she's straight

While being honoured at the Point Foundation awards earlier this week, Dunham praised her lesbian sister and admitted to a tinge of sexual orientation-centred jealousy, according to E! Online. "I have always felt a strong and emotional connection to the members of the LGBTQ community," Dunham says. "It was actually a huge disappointment for me when I came of age and realized that I was sexually attracted to men. So when my sister came out I thought, 'Thank God, someone in this family can truly represent my passions and beliefs.'"

Cali knows how to party...

LIQUID ASSETS
Peter Rockwell

liquidassets@eastlink.ca

The California Wine Fair has begun its annual trek across the country. It's always a classy night out, and fans of The Golden State will get to wet their whistle with a wide variety of wines from many of Cali's prime wine regions.

Though the Napa and Sonoma Valleys made it famous, California has almost 150 American Viticultural Areas (AVAs). These AVAs define each wine's geographical origin and where grapes that made the juice were grown.

Paso Robles may not be the easiest region to pronounce (it's pah-sow-row-bless), but it's producing some of the most original wines on the U.S. west coast from dozens of different grape varieties. Located between Los Angeles and San Francisco, it's also the home to many of Cali's most straight forward and consistent whites and reds made from mainstream fruit.

Liberty School's 2010 Cabernet Sauvignon ($19.99 - $21.99) is a gutsy, dark berry-driven red that makes a great pairing with everything from pepper steak to casual meats.

1. Rub lamb all over with Salsa Verde (see left) and season with salt and pepper. Cover and stand 30 minutes, or refrigerate for up to 12 hours. If you put lamb in the fridge, take it out 30 minutes before cooking so it can reach room temperature before going into the oven.

2. When you are ready to eat, preheat oven to 230 C. Transfer lamb to an oven tray or heavy cast iron dish and roast for 16-20 minutes or until it is done to your preference. Remove the dish from the oven, cover it with aluminum foil and then place a couple of clean cloths over the top to keep it warm while it rests for 10-15 minutes.

3. Slice between ones to separate lamb rack into cutlets and serve accompanied by an extra dish of Salsa Verde. WATCH THE ANNABEL LANGBEIN FREE RANGE COOK MONDAY TO THURSDAY AT 5:30 P.M. Lions sign centre Matt Norman to contract extension

Matt Norman, despite playing in his first full Canadian Football League season, was forced to become the anchor of the offensive line last year.

The B.C. Lions have ensured that he'll continue to grow into the centre position in the years ahead, signing him to a contract extension through the 2016 season in a deal that was announced Thursday.

The Lions selected Norman in the third round of the 2012 CFL Draft. He was moved into the centre position early on in training camp last June with the back injury to Angus Reid, who never fully recovered and, after off-season surgery, announced his retirement last month.

"Matt has shown tremendous progress and maturity in his first two seasons playing one of the most important positions on the field," said Lions general manager Wally Buono in a statement.

"His extension along with our recent signing of Hunter Steward and the return of Kirby Fabien means that the future of our offensive line is in good hands and it's along the line of scrimmage where championships are won."

NHL. Paul Stastny scores twice to lift playoff-bound Colorado to victory

Avalanche	Canucks

With the Stanley Cup playoffs no longer a possibility, Thursday's game against the Colorado Avalanche was an opportunity for some seldom-used players to make an impression.

After 19 consecutive starts for goalie Eddie Lack, it was Jacob Markstrom's turn to get in some game action.

Acquired in that blockbuster deal with the Florida Panthers for Roberto Luongo prior to the trade deadline, the 24-year-old Markstrom was making his first start for the Canucks.

Under the tutelage of goalie coach Roland Melanson, Markstrom has had to reconstruct his style since coming to Vancouver. But, for the most part, he looked good in his starting debut, even if the result was a 4-2 loss to the playoff-bound Avalanche.

He could hardly be faulted on the goals he allowed, including a pair by Paul Stastny.

On the first Colorado goal, Stastny picked the puck off rookie forward Nicklas Jensen at the Avalanche blue-line, went in on a breakaway and beat Markstrom five-hole.

He scored again in the third period, as the trio of Stastny, Gabriel Landeskog and rookie sensation Nathan MacKinnon went Globetrotters on the Canucks, with Stastny burying a rebound in front.

Victoria's Tyson Barrie scored the winning goal with 7:30 remaining in the third period.

Whitecaps look to shut down star-filled Galaxy

David Ousted knows there are two members of the L.A. Galaxy that garner the headlines.

He'll caution you, however, there is an entire team of capable players to worry about when facing one of Major League Soccer's benchmark franchises.

The Whitecaps are on the road Saturday, taking on a Galaxy squad that is off to a slow start, with one win in three matches but with a roster that includes stars Landon Donovan and Robbie Keane.

Donovan needs to score only once to become the MLS all-time leader in goals. He's currently at 134 for his career in this league, accomplishing that feat over 306 games played.

"I'll try and see if we can shut him out but ... it's important to shut anybody out," said Ousted.

Keane has statistically been the most dangerous scorer between him and Donovan over the past two regular seasons.

Keane is coming off back-to-back 16-goal campaigns.

While the Whitecaps managed positive results in all four of their March matches, the month of April is far more of a challenge. The Vancouver side has already lost once.

Saturday marks the first leg of a home-and-home set with the Galaxy. After that, the Whitecaps take on Real Salt Lake, last year's finalist for the MLS Cup.

The Whitecaps have also not won on the road against the Galaxy in regular-season competition since joining MLS in 2011.

"Thanks for reminding me," said head coach Carl Robinson. "Everyone, no doubt, will write us off. We haven't won in L.A. but there's always a first time."

Front-office shuffle is too little too late

THE HOCKEY NEWS
Ronnie Shuker
vancouver@metronews.ca

Monday night's 3-0 loss to the Anaheim Ducks merely confirmed what even a modestly knowledgeable fan knew was coming more than a month ago. There will be no playoffs in Vancouver this season.

Why the powers-that-be in the organization are only now waking up to that reality is beyond comprehension. In the wake of Vancouver being eliminated, big changes have already begun with GM Mike Gillis being fired, and more are likely to come. That's the good news. The bad news is they should have come at least a month ago, if not earlier (I've called for Gillis's canning for months), because it would have given the Canucks a chance to raze the ground and acquire a top-five pick in the 2014 draft before starting a full-on rebuild.

Ryan Kesler was a candidate to be dealt at the trade deadline. GETTY IMAGES

Heading into the break for the Winter Olympics, Vancouver was on a seven-game losing streak and had fallen out of the playoff picture. A dreamy optimist would say the Canucks were only one point out, but a practical pessimistic would rightly reply they were as good as dead and should have blown it up. But they didn't. Instead, Gillis hung on to key assets at the trade deadline — especially Ryan Kesler and Alexander Edler — when he could have held a complete fire sale and sunk the team to the depths of Calgary and Edmonton rather than treading water with Phoenix.

Trying to make the post-season has cost the Canucks an elite prospect, one that could have stepped right into the lineup next season. Instead, they're stuck in the middle of the pack — not good enough to make the playoffs, not bad enough to get a high pick. Their record against the Pacific Division this season says everything about the no man's land the team is in. At one extreme, Vancouver is 2-9-3 against Anaheim, San Jose and Los Angeles, and has been outscored 49-19. At the other, the Canucks are 7-1-0 against the Flames and Oilers, outscoring them 26-14. In the middle, they're 2-2-0 against the Coyotes, with 10 goals for and 11 against.

There's no worse place than the middle for a team in transition. Vancouver is getting crushed by the big dogs in California and will soon be passed by the young pups being stockpiled in Alberta. The Canucks' championship window is now officially closed, but the development door has been flung wide open. Here's hoping they jump through it headlong and tear the entire organization down before building it back up.

Green is the colour of success.
